

servicenow

PUT AI TO WORK WITH SERVICENOW®

DISCOVER THE INTELLIGENT PLATFORM →

OPINION | COMMENTARY Follow

Britain's NHS Left Indi Gregory to Die

The state prevented the 8-month-old girl from receiving medical care in Italy.

By Mark Rienzi

Nov. 20, 2023 at 1:56 pm ET

↶ 🔖 AA 💬 2 | 🔗 Gift unlocked article | 🔊 Listen \(5 min\) | ⋮

Indi Gregory in Nottingham, England. PHOTO: GREGORY FAMILY PHOTO/REUTERS

"We're here for you. Helping you take control of your health and wellbeing."

That's what the U.K.'s National Health Service promises its patients. Tragically, a growing number of cases show the NHS doing the opposite: taking away control and ensuring its patients die.

The latest example is 8-month-old Indi Gregory, who died on Nov. 13. Indi was born with mitochondrial disease, a degenerative condition that prevents cells from producing energy. When her parents and the Queen's Medical Centre in Nottingham, England, disagreed over whether she should be kept on life support, the NHS turned to the courts to strip the parents of decision-making authority. The U.K. High Court agreed, override the parents' wishes, and ordered life support removed.

That much of the story is tragic but not shocking. The NHS provides socialized medicine. When the government foots the bill for every patient, it may decide to stop what it sees as expensive-but-futile treatments. We can decry the human trade-offs and value judgments attendant to socialized medicine, but they come with the territory.

Yet Indi Gregory's story gets much worse. While the NHS thought continued treatment would be futile, other experts disagreed, including at the Vatican's Bambino Gesù pediatric hospital. As part of its religious mission, Bambino Gesù specializes in treating children with rare diseases. Doctors there offered a treatment plan they thought could help Indi, free of charge. The Italian government even made her a citizen so that she could be airlifted from England. Pope Francis weighed in, urging that Indi be transferred to Bambino Gesù, as did Italy's Prime Minister Giorgia Meloni.

Had Indi been in the U.S., her treating hospital would have transferred her to the willing hospital, even if its physicians thought treatment would be futile. For the U.K., the offer of free treatment by willing doctors ought to have been the end of the story. The government didn't have to pay another penny. The grateful parents simply wanted the freedom to take their daughter to the experts in Rome.

Instead, the NHS went back to the same court and judge to insist it remained in Indi's best interests to die in the U.K. The court again agreed and overrode the parents' desire to take Indi to see the experts in Rome. The judge ordered that they could take her only to one place: to the hospice to die.

The parents had no choice but to comply. Lest they try anything else to save their daughter, the parents were sent to hospice with a security escort and police presence.

Deprived of treatment and with her parents forbidden to help her, Indi died within two days, under the watchful eye of the government that said all along it was looking out for her best interests.

Indi's story is only the latest in a tragic series of cases in which the NHS and the courts decide to withdraw what they consider futile treatment and forbid treatment by experts with contrary opinions. Alfie Evans, Charlie Gard and Alta Fixsler (whose father was American) all died this way. So too did Sudiksha Thirumalesh, a 19-year-old who was deemed by a court to be mentally incompetent because she wanted to pursue experimental treatment in Canada. Barred from leaving, she died in the NHS's "care" in September.

The NHS doesn't always succeed in ending the lives of those it has ticketed for death. Sometimes a patient escapes the system and successfully receives treatment elsewhere.

That's the story of Tafida Raqeeb, a young girl who suffered brain damage caused by ruptured blood vessels. In 2019 the NHS wanted to remove Tafida, then 5, from life support and leave her to die. Yet Tafida's parents beat the system in court and took their daughter to Italy where she is still alive and receiving treatment. Tafida has had four years and counting with her parents, living a life the NHS had written off.

We'll never know whether the NHS was wrong about Indi Gregory too. But we will risk more tragedies until we insist on respecting the basic human rights of all people, including those who are sick or disabled. That doesn't mean hospitals should be forced to treat patients against their will. But we can't allow them to deprive patients of the right to try, stopping them from seeking potentially life-saving care from experts elsewhere.

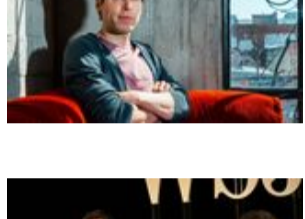

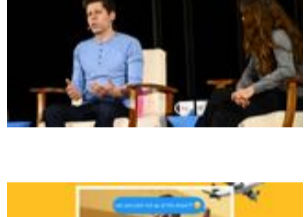

Courts should interfere with parental rights only in egregious cases. In such circumstances, they should be seeking to protect the child's life, not sending the police to make sure it ends.

How 3 women are addressing life's curveballs through smarter wealth planning.

Learn More | RAYMOND JAMES | COUNTRY WISJ

MOST POPULAR NEWS

1. Travis Kelce Opens Up About Taylor Swift and His Life After the NFL
2. The Pay Raise People Say They Need to Be Happy
3. OpenAI Employees Threatened to Quit Unless Boss Resigns
4. Sam Altman to Join Microsoft Following OpenAI Ouster
5. No One Should Pick You Up at the Airport

MOST POPULAR OPINION

1. Opinion: The Covid Vaccine Windfall Turns for Pfizer and Moderna
2. Opinion: Major Mea Culpa From MLB
3. Opinion: The Coming Deluge for Small Business
4. Opinion: Is the U.S. Ready for War?
5. Opinion: Republicans for a Carbon Tax

RECOMMENDED VIDEOS

1. OpenAI Employees Threatened to Quit After Sam Altman's Ouster
2. WSJ Opinion: Hits and Misses of the Week
3. U.S. vs. China: How China Is Playing Catch-Up on Nuclear-Submarine Tech
4. Libertarian Javier Milei Is Elected President of Argentina
5. Hundreds Evacuate Gaza's Al-Shifa Hospital as Israel Tightens Control

MEGILL AND PARTNERS
Specialist (re)insurance broker mcgillpartners.com

What to Read Next

OPINION

Opinion: Bill Nye, the Climate-Change Guy

November 19, 2023

Voters will show up in droves for Democrats once climate becomes an issue this winter.

Continue To Article

OPINION

Opinion: A New Approach to Taxes That Pays Its Own Way

21 hours ago

Two decades of unpaid-for tax cuts have eroded the federal government's revenue base.

Continue To Article

The Value of Wealth

PAID PROGRAM: RAYMOND JAMES

3 women's stories showcase how pivotal life experiences can impact legacy planning and other financial decisions.

OPINION

Opinion: Deep Dish, Midwest Delicacy

November 19, 2023

I have perfected one of the region's great delights.

Continue To Article

OPINION

Opinion: Sickie-Cell-Disease Research vs. Bureaucracy

November 16, 2023

The government spins its wheels at great expense and few patients are helped.

Continue To Article

OPINION

Opinion: Good News on Children and Cancer

November 16, 2023

Mortality rates have fallen sharply for pediatric malignancies.

Continue To Article

OPINION

Opinion: Court to FDA: Stop Playing Doctor

September 14, 2023

The Fifth Circuit revives a lawsuit over advice against taking ivermectin for Covid.

Continue To Article

OPINION

Opinion: Is the U.S. Ready for War?

November 19, 2023

It always comes down to men killing their enemies in the mud, says Sen. Tom Cotton.

Continue To Article

OPINION

Opinion: Should Transgender Treatments Be Available to Minors?

October 31, 2023

Students discuss the controversy over surgery and hormone treatment.

Continue To Article

ADVERTISEMENT

Market Legend Breaks His Silence on AI
Chaikin Analytics

Finding opportunities in core fixed income amid volatility.
J.P. Morgan Asset Management

Your business. Your way.
Merchant Services solutions
Bank of America

6 Of The Laziest (But Secretly Brilliant) Ways People Are Making Money
FinanceBuzz

5 Investing Mistakes to Avoid
Charles Schwab

Top 5 Wealth Management Firms in The United States smartasset

oianomi

Additional 20% off in-app purchases + free delivery with Wayfair discount code

Epic Bundle - 3x Expert Stock Recommendations

Get 13% off sitewide with Vitacost promo code

BALLARD DESIGNS:

Sign up for Ballard Designs text alerts and get 25% Off

TURBOTAX:

Save up to $15 with TurboTax coupon 2023

TARGET:

Take 20% off Your Entire Order - Target promo Code

WAYFAIR:

Additional 20% off in-app purchases + free delivery with Wayfair discount code

THE MOTLEY FOOL:

Epic Bundle - 3x Expert Stock Recommendations

VITACOST:

Get 13% off sitewide with Vitacost promo code

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL.
a Dow Jones company

English Edition

Sign Out

WSJ Membership
Buy Side Exclusives
Subscription Options
Why Subscribe?
Corporate Subscriptions
WSJ Higher Education Program
WSJ High School Program
Public Library Program
WSJ Live
Commercial Partnerships

Customer Service
Customer Center
Contact Us
Cancel My Subscription

Tools & Features
Newsletters & Alerts
Guides
Topics
My News
RSS Feeds
Video Center
Watchlist
Podcasts
Visual Stories

Ads
Advertise
Commercial Real Estate Ads
Place a Classified Ad
Sell Your Business
Recruitment & Career Ads
Coupons
Digital Self Service

More
About Us
Content Partnerships
Corrections
Jobs at WSJ
News Archive
Register for Free
Reprints & Licensing
Buy Issues
WSJ Shop

Dow Jones Products Barron's BigCharts Dow Jones Newswires Factiva Financial News Mansion Global MarketWatch Risk & Compliance

Buy Side from WSJ WSJ Pro WSJ Video WSJ Wine