Wrong. Being a business owner doesn't mean you can discriminate. There were a lot of lunch counters in the 50s that didn't want to serve blacks and now look at where we are. You are on the wrong side of history and should be ashamed of yourself. And you really shouldn't be calling yourself a Christian.

That's why I want something really special! I think one of your beautiful cakes would be the perfect way to show my love for him and to mark this auspicious anniversary of our very special day.

You would bake a Valentine's Day cake for us to celebrate the love that has sustained us for the last 10 years, wouldn't you? I mean, it's not like you'd be baking anything for our actual wedding. That was a long time ago.

Cathy Miller, how would you feel if you walked in to a bakery and ordered a cake with Merry Christmas written on it and you were refused? The owner was not a Christian and didn't agree with your faith. How would that make you feel? Your faith defines you and to be denied for who you are is devastating i would assume. When people are denied for who they are it's detrimental. Have you ever considered the message you are giving by denying service to gay couples. They are ridiculed and shamed by many and now marriage is finally legal they feel they are overcoming the obstacles from being gay. They finally feel they no longer have to hide who they are and can be open and walk into an establishment and not worry about being shamed. Then, you turn them away. Tell me, how would you feel if one of these people committed suicide due to the shame they felt from you? You may have been the straw that broke the camels back. If you would have loved like Jesus and accepted all like He does then this person would have felt welcomed and seen Jesus's love through you, but instead they felt like like Jesus and accepted all like he does then this person would have felt welcomed and seen Jesus's love through you, but instead they felt like they are unworthy and flawed like the rest of the world had been making them feel for years which was why they hid who they were for years. Jesus knows your heart, if you baked the cake doing it only to make the couple feel loved, not because you agree with the marriage, because Jesus knows you don't, i think thats the key. You sinned, you caused someone to feel less when you should be building people up 1 Thessalonians 5:11 says that. And maybe on this good day of the Lord you should re-visit Romans 14:13-23 and one more Matthew 7:1-5.

Do you sell custom cakes to couples that have had premarital sex? How about couples that have been married before? Or couples that one (or both) has committed adultery? Etc, etc.. I hope the answer is no or there is the proof that you are just a bigot and hypocrite hiding behind religion.

Kimmel's over-the-top salad descriptions were meant to torment the woman who was not allowed to order one. In the real world, Tastries owner Cathy Miller appears not to have a vindictive bone in her body. Despite their superior airs, Kimmel and other late-night hosts are showing us how insufferably stupid they've become.

@Jason Krein A wedding celebration is a private event that is not regulated by law. Neither the state nor customers have the right to impose their definition of "wedding celebration" or "wedding cake" on free citizens, or on a company owner. If someone understands "wedding celebration" specifically as the celebration of the union of a man and a woman, of potential procreation, of potential motherhood and fatherhood, then that person has every right to do so, and it has nothing to do with hatred. But, to compel artistic expression in contradiction to the artist's inspiration and discretion is tantamount to forcing someone to lie. A Government that uses its power to do so is arguably acting out of aggression and hate of freedom. So far only terrible dictatorships have attempted to compel artistic expression. That is the key issue.

Tastries case a waste of high court's time

Taking the law and the Bible out of the Tastries case, shouldn't we all have rights? All people are important and should be protected. Because we have freedom to make choices, we know that our choice may not be a popular one to some, but is one that is important to us.

In this case, Miller's choice cost her some business and other fallout. It cost the couple an inconvenience, possibly an insult and some anger. Why not kiss Tastries goodbye and move on to another bakery; there are many better ones here. What is there to gain from a judgment? Possibly acceptance, retaliation, or even money?

No matter what the courts say, is it going to change those on either side? I'm disappointed that the Supreme Court has to spend time on these cases as there are so many urgent things in this country that need their time. This is a no-win situation.

— Laurie Patrick

IS IT CAKE OR CONSCIENCE?

The First Amendment — to which our nation's Founders gave the highest priority — guarantees to all Americans three unalienable rights: freedom of speech, freedom of the press, and freedom to practice our religion according to the dictates of our conscience without hindrance from human law.

Journalists have always rightly resisted any attempt to limit their right to investigate, report and publish. They have bravely defied demands by the highest authorities in the land not to make certain facts public, even facts that the government claims would endanger national security itself. They have courageously risked severe legal punishments by refusing to bow even to such seemingly legitimate demands.

In my view, therefore, it is a sad contradiction to see The Californian and others demanding that Cathy Miller, under force of law, be required to compromise her rights and violate her conscience, or else close up shop. Her conscience is shaped by her deep love and strong allegiance to her Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ. Today's modern media refuses to respect or even recognize the reality that, for some people, the creation and conduct of their business IS their way of honoring God, serving others, and practicing their religion in a practical way in the real world.

A past president of Harvard once wrote with great admiration for those who stand true to their faith in the face of contrary human laws: "If they suffer because they dare not comply with the wills of men against the will of God, they suffer in a good cause."

Amen to that.

— Don Clark, Arvin

HOW TO WRITE US

Letters to the editor should address a single topic in no more than 250 words and be signed by just one person. The author's true first and last names, address and telephone number must accompany the letter. Only the author's name and city will be published. Content is subject to editing for length, clarity and appropriate content. The Californian reserves the right to decline publication if letters are libelous, defamatory or criticize an ideology, party, nationality, etc., in generalized terms. The preferred method of submission is via our website: Bakersfield.com/opinion. Letters also may be emailed to opinion@bakersfield.com; mailed to Opinion Section, The Bakersfield Californian, P.O. state that one's religious freedom can dictate the actions of another, nor does it allow business transaction restrictions with the general public based on religious beliefs.

If a business wishes to exclude transacting with a member of the general public on the basis of that customer's religion, that public entity should establish itself as being limited to and transact with only members of that business owner's religion. That being said, one's sexual orientation has nothing whatsoever to do with religion.

Tastries is utterly wrong in denying a sale of a specifically themed (wedding) cake based upon this owner's disapproval of the customer's sexual orientation. This couple wanted a cake; they were not in this shop to proselytize the owner into agreeing with or participating in a sexual act of any kind. This is America! To restrict any business based on sexual orientation is not lawful. It is prejudicial, and extremely so.

Owner Cathy Miller needs to pay attention to her own words. A sexual orientation is not a belief. A strong religious belief has nothing to do with one's predisposed existence. It is a part of life under which dictates the sexual orientation of every species of existence on this planet.

And this holier-than-thou attitude of religious militants has triggered nearly every war this planet has ever suffered. In the words of the late Rodney King, "Can't we all just get along?"

— JoAnne Klein, Bakersfield

USE OF 'TREASON' A SERIOUS MATTER

Kevin McCarthy must make a public statement stating that President Donald Trump is threatening our American democracy when he accuses Democrats of treasonous behavior when they do not stand and applaud during his State of the Union address.

Treason in the United States can carry the death penalty, and the use of it is a very serious matter. For a close ally of Trump to tolerate the loose use of the word "treason" by Trump is to be complicit in the destruction of our democratic principles.

Loss of democratic freedoms is a very slippery slope. A member of the opposition in Kenya has been charged with "treason" for a symbolic display against Kenyan President Kenyatta. Don't think it can't happen here.

— Andrew Honig, Bakersfield

WILL KELLY BE REPLACED WITH KEVIN?

Congressman Kevin McCarthy slipped into Bakersfield to attend the funeral of Mark Abernathy. I didn't know Air Force One had a GPS that could find Bakersfield.

McCarthy is always tagging along with President Trump. I wonder if he wears one of those earpiece receivers and watchband mics like the Secret Service wears to communicate with the president when Trump is running low on Starburst candies.

If Trump fires John Kelly as chief of staff, maybe he will appoint McCarthy to this position. It would get rid of him as congressman, so we may get someone who will represent the people of this district.

Then, after a few months, when McCarthy irritates the president, he will be without a job. Maybe that is too much to wish for.

— James McCall, Taft

WOMEN NEEDN'T FEAR EVIL CONSERVATIVE MALES

Concerning the Community Voices submission by Tracy Correa Lopez ("Women's March Kern County a liberating experience for thousands," Jan. 30):

First, I want to congratulate everyone involved with the Women's March.

I have to admit, however, that I was taken aback by the comment "and it was peaceful." Was Ms. Lopez fearing that a large group of conservatives were going to counter-protest? It's my experience that the Democratic Party has done so much harm to women's rights in America — unless she was referring to reproductive rights.

Conservatives strive for success and rights for all, in my opinion.

It's disheartening to read that she feels living in a conservative community means she as a woman is lacking rights to succeed, and to have all the rights that her perceived evil conservative male neighbors enjoy.

Je pense que lorsqu'on est chrétienne justement nous devons être seulement dans l'Amour de son prochain et donner du Bonheur ,pas de juger ces personnes

I think that when we are Christian we must be only in the love of his next and give happiness, not to judge these people

,n'importe quoi elle a peur de quoi d'être contaminée ce est pas une maladie mais un fait qui ne devrait pas choquer Que d'intolerance faut vivre avec son temps !!!!!!!

, anything she's afraid of being contaminated is not a disease but a fact that should not shock that d' has to live with her time!!!!!!

If we can't follow our conscience, we can no longer be the person that God wants us to be. I am unable to do something that would hurt my Lord and Savior..... here are the words of a woman to clear herself from her own opinions!! What courage... or rather what

Lord and Savior..... here are the words of a woman to clear herself from her own opinions!! What courage... or rather what cowardice!!!! It just proves to my Meaning that this woman judges and condemns without any scruples by hiding behind a religion that yet we counsel tolerance... respect for others.... God I would have created it has its image and therefore it does not want to disappoint !!! is she so perfect? And if two men want to live and unite, who is she to know what God thinks? Who is she t... See More

Moreover, these cakes are beautiful... but my-Year-old daughter... without any degree in pastry making it so pretty!!! With Sculptures or handmade characters!!! We only see a pile Of several very simple cakes decorated with flowers... or is the difficulty..... she must also learn humility this lady!!!!

God bless you and keep you. Ignore the ignorance of the lost souls spewing their hate. They so need the love of Jesus Christ in their hearts and our prayers.

Pretty sure it was Jesus who commanded that judgement of others be left up to God, but hey, whatever gets you to sleep at night.

I mean, you have to have SOME excuse for being a hate-filled bigot, right?

Well...I hope your "supporters" continue to "financially support" your business. Any SMART business owner knows that the LGBT demographic has the highest percentage of disposable income on the planet. They also have enormous social media presence....and Bakersfield ain't that big of a town. Maybe you think you're a good "Christian" but evidently you may not be such a good "businessperson". I own a very successful business, and serve the public. The money looks exactly the same from all of them in my bank account. And God loves me too because I actively, and generously support many religious or... See More

It's not the junk we put in our mouths---put the hateful divisive words that come out of it--that causes great harm in the world. That's an indirect quote from Rabbi Jesus who NEVER said one disparaging word about humans who have loving feelings towards other humans of the same sex. Not a word. In fact, read your 'Old Testament' a bit more carefully. No where does it say that being LGB or T is a sin. Your actions have caused great harm in the world. Still time to make good.
