Comment as Tastries Bakery...

Tastries owner has stood by her beliefs more than once

A couple of weeks ago, a man walked into Tastries Bakery in Bakersfield and asked owner Cathy Miller to bake him a divorce cake. His plan, he told Miller, was to present the cake to his unsuspecting wife with the news that their marriage was over.

Miller, a lifelong Christian who holds to the biblical definition of marriage, refused.

No rational person would insist Miller compromise her faith beliefs to bake a divorce cake. In America's sexuality obsessed climate, however, it's become acceptable to demand that she do so when the cake in question will celebrate the union of a same-sex couple.

That demand was made upon Miller in August when an already married lesbian couple, Eileen and Mireya Rodriguez-Del Rio, visited Tastries purportedly to order a wedding cake for a belated celebration.

MARYLEE SHRIDER

According to mostly sympathetic news reports, the couple were "dumbfounded" when Miller refused to lend her talents to, and thereby give her tacit approval of, same-sex marriage.

Miller should not be bullied into using her artistic gifts to advance a message she believes is unbiblical and immoral. Her stand is identical to that of Jack Phillips, whose case, Masterpiece Cakeshop vs. Colorado, is now before the U.S. Supreme Court. Like Phillips, Miller happily serves people from all walks of life, of all races and, yes, sexual orientations. Still, for those who dare to dissent, there is no mercy.

Soon after their visit, Eileen Rodriguez-Del Rio posted the couple's grievance against Tastries on Facebook.

Within minutes, Tastries' Facebook page was so riddled with vulgar and slanderous postings that Miller contacted Facebook to shut the page down. The bakery was next targeted on Yelp, where "customers" from across the country tried to destroy Tastries' stellar ratings with tall tales of dry, inedible baked goods and horrid service. To stem the tide, Miller and her family were finally forced to shut down all social media outlets — Pinterest, Tumblr, Instagram — for a full month.

Miller is grateful for the support she's received from the Bakersfield community through the months of harassment. And she's taken steps to protect her business. She keeps two, inch-thick binders filled with the virulent emails she's received, many rife with f-bombs, threats, porn and the senders' sincere hopes that she and her business crash and burn real soon. She's made local law enforcement aware of the threats and installed in her shop high definition security cameras with two-way audio — the same cameras that captured her conversation with Mr. Divorce Cake in illuminating detail.

Sadly, the continued harassment proved too much for some. Since August, Miller has lost six employees.

While most of her corporate and nonprofit customers have stood by her, a couple abruptly cut ties. To cover lost manpower Miller and her family worked nearly round the clock through Christmas. Miller estimates lost revenue at "tens of thousands."

Miller welcomed a brief respite from the controversy in mid-December, when Kern County Superior Court Judge David Lampe denied the state of California's temporary restraining order against Tastries, an order that would mandate she make cakes for gay weddings or not at all. The judge postponed the case to Feb. 2 citing the need for more information to make his ruling a fair one, a decision oddly characterized in recent Californian coverage as a "legal setback." And here you thought making fair and evidence-based rulings is something judges are supposed to do.

It would have been much easier for Miller, her family and employees had she simply caved and agreed to create the cake the Rodriguez-Del Rios believe they're entitled to. But Miller's Christian faith is more intrinsic to who she is than anything else. As a Christian and artist she believes that compelling anyone to use their art to promote a message they find immoral is itself a great moral wrong.

Hopefully, the Supreme Court will agree and protect our freedoms of religion and speech. In the meantime, I recommend the pink passion cupcakes. They're awesome.

@tastriesbakery No thank you. I was just curious if everyone gets turned away or just "certain" people. And now asking for handouts for her legal fees, others may be curious as well. I don't think customers, in general, really care about her religious beliefs. And maybe, just maybe, if she didn't care so much about theirs, her business wouldn't be suffering now. My whole point was, there are a lot of straight couples who do things she may not agree with. If she denied service to them, she'd have no business.

@bakersfieldblocks Hello. We would be happy to explain our business practices to you in-store where we can walk you through the process of ordering a cake. If you are also interested in knowing more about Cathy's religious beliefs and how they impact her life as a business woman, we could gladly arrange a time for you to meet with her. Please feel free to stop by any time 3665 Rosedale Highway.

FCDF's statement on #SCOTUS ruling in #Masterpiece case.

"We are pleased the Supreme Court has recognized the long held principle that government cannot show hostility to citizens who live and work according to their most deeply held religious beliefs. As we argued in our defense of Cathy, people of faith should not be persecuted for refusing to use their artistic talents to promote messages that violate their conscience. Cathy loves to serve all people at her bakery, including LGBT persons, but she will not compromise her unwavering belief in God's design for marriage

The Supreme Court ruled that lower courts must balance the rights of religious persons and LGBT persons, and we are confident that on balance Cathy properly exercised her rights by respectfully offering to connect the LGBT couple that came into her shop with a rival baker who would gladly make their wedding cake. The only thing the couple was not offered was the right to force Cathy to violate her religious beliefs—that is not a right to which they are entitled."

8 MASTERPIECE CAKESHOP, LTD. v. COLORADO
CIVIL RIGHTS COMM'N
GINSBURG, J., dissenting

rado Court of Appeals considered the case de novo. What prejudice infected the determinations of the adjudicators in the case before and after the Commission? The Court does not say. Phillips' case is thus far removed from the only precedent upon which the Court relies, Church of Lukumi Babalu Aye, Inc. v. Hialeah, 508 U. S. 520 (1993), where the government action that violated a principle of religious neutrality implicated a sole decisionmaking body, the city council, see id., at 526–528.

For the reasons stated, sensible application of CADA to a refusal to sell any wedding cake to a gay couple should occasion affirmance of the Colorado Court of Appeals' judgment. I would so rule.

© REUTERS/Rick Wilking Gay married couple David Mullins and Charlie Craig pose for a photo in Denver

Two of the court's four liberals, Stephen Breyer and Elena Kagan, joined the five conservative justices in the ruling authored by Justice Anthony Kennedy.

"The commission's hostility was inconsistent with the First Amendment's guarantee that our laws be applied in a manner that is neutral toward religion," Kennedy wrote, referring to the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution.

"The outcome of cases like this in other circumstances must await further elaboration in the courts, all in the context of recognizing that these disputes must be resolved with tolerance, without undue disrespect to sincere religious beliefs, and without subjecting gay persons to indignities when they seek goods and services in an open market," Kennedy said.

Of the 50 states, 21 including Colorado have anti-discrimination laws protecting gay people.

The closely watched case before the Supreme Court, which in 2015 legalized same-sex marriage nationwide, pitted gay rights against religious liberty. President Donald Trump's administration intervened in the case in support of Phillips.

Dominik Garcia Dick's is acting on what they believe in too. Same thing. Just because it triggers your snowflake alarm because you don't like it because you disagree doesn't mean it's any different. A business can do what a business wants to do. Don't like it? Poor baby, don't shop there. Also, since when is calling someone a woman a bad thing? Last I checked, your mom is a woman. I'm guessing you don't have a wife, but if you did, she'd probably be a woman too.

John, yeah, it's only apples to oranges when you disagree with the result. There ARE indeed correlations here.

I also don't have to ask whether or not you have a moral compass since I assume you thought about your precious guns before you ever thought about the safety of students.

Not upset at all. Dick's has made it clear who they are, and I won't shop there. No problem.

Yeah I am not upset at Dick's policy. I will just never shop there again. I have no interest in trying to find an 18-21 year old and having them try to buy a gun there and then sue them for discrimination. There are too many other local vendors that support the Second Amendment or are at least completely neutral on the subject that would want my sporting goods business.

If you support Dick's policy

If you support Dick's policy of discriminating against youth from participating in a right guaranteed by the Second Amendment, then you would be a hypocrite for criticizing the Tastries Bakery.

Wesley, and that's fine to just not shop there. However, why do you think it's OK for the owner of Tastries to use her religion to make business decisions but it's not OK for the CEO of Dick's to make a decision that he believes will help curb mass shootings? It might not be "his" business, but he does have the final say over executive decisions like this one.

Soooooooo, if a baker refuses to make a wedding cake for a LGBT community member that's discrimination but if a 20 year old female wants to purchase an AR 15 Dicks can refuse her even though there is not a state or federal law in place (in that state) prohibiting it. Age discrimination ??? Sound like a lawsuit in the making until the feds or all states get to enacting legislation.

This anti-gay baker is allowed to decide what customers do with their cakes AFTER THEY BUY THEM, Judge David Lampe, a Schwarzenegger appointee, rules.

We get to say where we buy our pastries so I say let the market sort this out.

Wow! I did not know what I was getting myself into once I ordered a hate cake from Tastries. It was exactly as expected, very nice lettering, moist cake, etc. and in my experience you never really know quite what you're getting with a hate cake! I was delighted, but not surprised, to see that the intellectually infantile & hateful worldview required to actually make these hate cakes has found a home in California! I visit so many bakeries who foolishly treat every cake, and person, as though they are equal - maybe you'll get lucky, but it DEFINITELY won't be a hate cake. You may not even realize you're eating a hate cake at first - it goes almost entirely undetected to the tongue - but nothing beats that sweet, sweet satisfaction of knowing this cake was made by the hands of someone who believes specific people should have specific rights & discrimination is allowed as long as your god says so. It's right there in the rules, silly! So three cheers for hate, cake, and a world that does not accept certain human beings for who they are. Mmmm!! Someone's getting hungry just writing this!!!!!!

I read your response to the woman attacking the owner of Tastries Bakery and wanted to thank you for responding in a kind, loving, sincere way - honoring God just as we are trying to do. There is very little we can say right now which is why I wanted to reach out to you privately and let you know how appreciative we are. Thank you for standing true to your faith while supporting our family and our business. We hope to see you soon! God bless.

Oh you are so welcome. It is the right thing to do :) But I deleted it because I realized even though it was kind, it still may be taken wrongly especially if they don't follow God but I did report all her comments that I could find on a few more posts of yours because I just think it was really out of line and hurtful. And no one deserves to be treated that way. I will be praying for your bakery and all of you who work there. We love coming there for the gluten free treats every now and then!

God bless you all too 🧡

Why follow this page if you have such dislike toward the business or the owners? I don't believe they were being hateful when they said no to supporting a gay couples wedding. So just because someone doesn't agree with gay marriage doesn't mean they hate gay people. As followers of Jesus, we are called to love others as Christ loves us. That doesn't mean we are to love their sins. As Christians, we know the bible clearly talks about sins of all kinds and one of them being that a man laying with a man or a woman with a woman is a sin. We all sin and that separates us from God. There are plenty of bakeries that are happy to support separates us from God. There are plenty of bakeries that are happy to support gay couples and that's their choice as it's their business. So instead of causing an uproar, the couple could've just went to another bakery and called it a day. What is wrong, is trying to force others (tastries bakery in this instance) to go against their personal beliefs (supporting gay marriage) and against God's word (it is a sin). Now don't mistake me for a "anti gay bigot" because I love all people whether they be gay, transgender, bisexual, or whatever the case. I don't hate the person. I love the person because they are God's creation.. but I don't agree with their lifestyle choice to be gay, teamsgender or bisexual because it goes against my teamsgender or bisexual because it goes against my beliefs. I wouldn't go to a gay friend's wedding because I don't support it. Doesn't make me a hater of people who are gay. I hope you understand what I am saying and where I am coming from as a believer in Christ. Those who follow Christ know they will face trials and tribulations where their faith is being attacked because they do not give into the ways of the world like in this situation for example. But God has already conquered all and that's the good news. At the end of the day, we are all people with beating hearts and feelings. You have them, Cathy has them, and we all have them. And we all have different opinions, views, beliefs, and morals. So if you don't like the way they run their

It's hard to believe it's that time of year now, honestly. Of course, here in Indiana, we were in the upper 80's a few days ago, and we are now under a frost advisory. Imagine that. LOL! We have a saying here in Indiana, "Well, I guess that's Indiana weather for you. Nice and sunny one minute, storming the next." Anyway, I hope you and your family are having a blessed day.

The owner of Tastries refers these couples to another bakery who will bake their cake. She has apparently done so in the past so she is making sure they are taken care of. Also, she doesn't refuse service in general- she has stated all people are able to come in and purchase any of her baked goods- but she cannot bake a special cake for the celebration of a union that goes against her beliefs. So she has tried to be accommodating.

Her idea of "trying to be accommodating" is illegal. She's violating the Unruh Act. This isn't a matter of opinion, it's the law. Her feelings and beliefs have nothing to do with anything.

If she bakes wedding cakes AT ALL, she's obliged to bake one for this couple, or be fined for refusing to do so. If she gets put out of business, that'll be because of HER choices.

People should be able to have the religious believes and take those ideas to work with him; if the business does not support your beliefs go somewhere else but you should not be able to force them to bake you a cake. There are over 250,000 people living in Bakersfield... just go to another Baker, store, or wherever. This issue will not be resolved through litigation but by social change. 20

Actually no, I have done business with this bakery in the past and never knew the policy.

Unsuspecting same sex couples have gone here for cake tastings to book a wedding cake and been turned away for years. No one has made it public until now. These couples showed up with the intention of booking a cake and were turned away. It has never been about suing or it would have been done years ago.

Hey Jake! I think if I read all the facts from this correctly, it was specifically that the owner would not make them a "wedding cake" (those require a designer and the customer picks out all the details). I believe the owner was also the wedding cake designer. I think obviously anyone can go in and buy a cake or another bakery item. I know you will still have an opinion on the matter, just wanted to give a little extra info for clarification ;)

Queer definitely doesn't go against nature; have you ever studied biology in your life?? I know I have! There is ample example of wildlife choosing to mate with the same sex that we've seen throughout time. Biology isn't black and white. Look at clownfish; look at parthenogenetic whiptail lizards!

Of course they will. That isn't news. The following also isn't news, but perhaps they genuinely don't know. THERE ARE OTHER BAKERIES IN TOWN. Utilize one!!!! Sing its praises. Problem solved. I don't understand why it is ok for the owner of Tastries to be demonized. She was not rude, she simply stated her beliefs. If this couple wants respect for their lifestyle choices, then they need to do the same.

See what I had to say to the Bakersfield Californian about tunneling secret orders from Cathy. Very eye-opening for those who wonder how gay cake orders made it through Tastries without her knowing. (But this guy also forgot to mention before she was turning LGBT orders away because "morals", she was charging a 20% increase.)

These badly informed business owners just break my Christian and Godly heart. They insist on missing almost every point of Jesus' ministry, promote philosophical points from Law of Old Testament which was OVERCOME by Gospel of New Testament and in general just act like poorly taught&ignorant, unchurched amateurs. Just like people "forget" in zeal against drinking alcohol that one of Jesus' many miracles was "creating" MORE WINE at a wedding--they also forget ".....the greatest of these is LOVE". So sorri. xxooof

The alphabet squad is at it again. Trying to force everyone to submit to their will. Another bakery has been targets by alphabet activists for silence since Sheba a Christian. Of course the alphabet brigade took to facebook to cry about being turned away and in typical fashion the wolves came out in mass. They are lowering her rating to 1 star, threatening her and harassing the bakery owner. Let's call, email, and yell her we stand with her and keep her in your prayers

This place is the absolute worst. First of all, their hygiene standards are so lax, I'm surprised they have not been closed down by the Board of Health. I personally witnessed one gray-haired woman drop a donut on the floor and then put it back on the tray for poor unsuspecting customers. Furthermore, this same gray-haired woman was seen coughing and sneezing all over some cupcakes, apparently meant for a children's birthday party. Finally, when this woman got around to waiting on me, she pointedly asked if I was a homosexual because they "don't serve those kinds of people". Needless to say, I was flabbergasted and demanded to see the manager. To my surprise, she claimed to be the manager! Still in shock, I just walked out never to return. In the parking lot though, I encountered a sobbing Mexican woman sitting on the curb. After asking her what was wrong, she stated that she had been working "in the back" of this bakery for some time without pay. When she demanded they pay her, she was summarily fired and told "you are lucky to even be in our presence. We don't like filthy Mexicans go back to where you cam from!". Why this filthy pigsty staffed by bigots is still in business is a real mystery.

My sister got her wedding cake from here. It was dry and instead of actual buttercream they went the cheap way and threw it back to the 80's by using Crisco instead of real butter for the icing. It didn't taste good. I don't know if they were having an off day or something. It was decorated nice but it was kind of simple so I can see how they didn't mess that up too. Also, when you do a wedding cake (white cake) you're supposed to line the baking pan with parchment paper and trim off any brown so the cake looks nice when you cut it. You can also tell a cake is dry by touching it. If it's dry brush it with simple syrup. Like I said it was decorated very nice it just had a few amateurish mistakes.

It appears that the ownership is involved in a cult that seeks to deny confection to certain groups to appease a mythical god who dislikes its followers when they make cakes for certain human beings. Seems perfectly logical.

Oh yeah, no problem. It's also recorded and out online in as she misses it. Also, he's not preaching the entire sermon on it, he'll just talk about it at some point.

This morning I had the opportunity to drive to Bakersfield to check out Tastries Bakery. This bakery is about 140 miles due north from where I live. I learned about them and its owner Cathy from a disturbing news article that I came across recently. It appears that Cathy is being sued simply because she has a conscience and a personal belief in a Creator that has created Adam and Eve from the beginning in His image. This same Creator is condemning the sin of homosexuality and therefore same sex "marriage". Cathy was kind enough to refer the couple to a competitor (therefore losing business). Because of all the negative reviews intolerant people saw fit to leave against her business I wanted to go in and sample some of the baked goods in order to review them. I was greeted by very friendly and understanding staff. I told them it's my first visit to their bakery and needed to look around first to see what were some of the choices. There were 6 of us that visited the bakery and came away with about 20 different types of baked goods. We went back home and sampled the goodies. This is already a long post, but here is a sample: Creamcheese pillows I could have eaten all on my own (flaky pastry filled with a delicious cream cheese filling and topped with crunchy sugar to add another goods. We went back home and sampled the goodies. This is already a long post, but here is a sample: Creamcheese pillows I could have eaten all on my own (flaky pastry filled with a delicious cream cheese filling and topped with crunchy sugar to add another dimension to the wonderful pastry). Cherry cheesecake bars melt in your mouth and are covered by a layer of crumbles and toasted almonds that make them very tasty. Lemon bars have just the right balance of tart/sweetness and taste like real lemons were used in making them. They are also covered by a layer of crumbles that make them yummy. Chocolate chocolate cupcake is definitely a choice for chocolate lovers. Very satisfying and moist cupcake I would buy again. Same goes for the Black and white cupcake; I found it to be fresh with a rich chocolate taste and flavorful vanilla frosting. Cannoli are crunchy on the outside with a layer of chocolate inside and a smooth filling with a hint of cinnamon to make them great tasting. Chocolate chip cookies are nice and chewy with a generous amount of chocolate chips for the chocolate lovers. Sampled the Sugar cookies (nice and chewy, fresh tasting), Fudge brownie (also chewy, moist, and freshly made) a chocolate lovers dream dessert worth the calories!

I highly recommend this bakery and wish people would review it on its products and not on others negative reviews that have never sampled the baked goods. Was hoping to be able to include some pictures of the baked goods we sampled and loved.

Of course they do. Because that was their agenda all along. If it was about their WEDDING they would use another baker. For a bunch of people that want tolerance they sure don't practice it. It's sad on both sides. I just wish the couple would admit what they are really after instead of acting like this is the ONLY BAKER that could make a cake. Seriously?

Jesus washed the feet of prostitutes. He didn't discriminate. But clearly you know better than Jesus did.

Your hatred, your bigotry, your misplaced and hypocritical religious zealotry is as great a sin as any you judge in others.

Christ didn't teach us to hate, to discriminate, to judge. You decided to do it all on your own.

You're bearing a false witness, while pretending you know better than Jesus.

It's not fair for them to have a belief system? Hmmm that sounds like hate from people that are calling this company a hateful company. We all have beliefs and views. They should be respected for theirs. If they don't want to make a cake because it disrespects their beliefs then people need to move forward with their lives and purchase a cake somewhere that approves of what they are doing. Of course this company is going to get slander because no one respects their beliefs, yet they want their beliefs respected? What is wrong with the world. Jesus come soon please. I would gladly buy cake from this company, and if I didn't agree with them, I'd take my business somewhere else. That's like a Christian wanting to buy a Baptism cake from an atheist shop owner, it's been done and denied, but you don't see that making the news. If it goes against the persons beliefs they have every right to refuse service!
